Patrol From Infantry Which

TOKYO, Dec. 23.—In another amazing about-face, Japan today admitted that survivors landing from the Panay and other ships December 13, were machine-gunned.

An official army report confirmed that men fleeing toward shore were fired upon "by mistake."

The latest report said "it is now recognized" that a patrol from a Japanese infantry company watching the bombings from ashore, fired with light machine guns on persons "looking like Chinese soldiers" alighting from the attacked ships.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 23.—(INS)—American patience was wearing a little thin today over Japan's procrastinating tactics in meeting this government's demands for satisfaction in the Panay "incident."

Washington is now in possession of what it considers irrefutable proof that the destruction of the American gunboat by Japanese bombers—far from being the "regrettable accident" that the Japanese masses have been led to believe—actually was deliberate on the part of somebody in the Japanese command. No other conclusion can be reached on the evidence, it is said.

More than a week has now elapsed since the delivery in Tokyo of the sternest note that has gone out of Washington since the World War days. In that time, an American naval board of inquiry has met, investigated, and found that the stories of civilian eyewitnesses were accurate in all essential details as to the savagery of the attack and the machine-gunning of the survivors.

But the Japanese appear to have been utterly unable to reach any findings of their own. There has been no reply to the American note. Japanese army spokesmen continue to maintain the front that the bombers attacked the American ships during "poor visibility" and under the erroneous idea they were fleeing Chinese troop-ships. All the evidence Washington has refutes this. The weather was clear, and a Japanese patrol had been aboard the Panay at anchor only a few hours before the attack.

TOKYO, Dec. 23.—(INS)—Japan's harried government was confronted with still another sharp protest today—this time a militant British complaint against an attack on a Chinese ship in Hong Kong waters.

International News Service learned the British Embassy handed the note regarding the recent Hong Kong incident to the Japanese Foreign Office this morning.

The note termed the attack on the Chinese ship a violation of Hong Kong's integrity. It was the sixteenth protest Britain has sent Tokyo.

The protest objected strenuously to an incident December 11, in which Japanese sailors entered territorial waters of the British crown colony of Hong Kong and seized a Chinese customs vessel which had been fired upon and driven ashore.

Britain demanded Japan guarantee to respect the integrity of Hong Kong and hinted British naval forces are prepared to take any action necessary to enforce such respect.

Distributes $75,000

Ambler, Pa., Dec. 23.—J. Harry Gravell, Ambler paint manufacturer who gave $100,000 in bonuses to 76 employees last year to "pay their just debts," today distributed $75,000 more among his workers. This year Gravell remembered the housewife, whom he called "the forgotten woman of this era." In addition to the bonus, the manufacturer gave checks of $300 each to his 70 married employees with the instruction "this is for your wife, not you."

"One of the most important factors in the makeup of a man has up to this time been ignored," said Gravell, "and that is the housewife who plods along taking care of her husband year after year."

CHILDREN'S HOLIDAY

Once more the world has moved around to that greatest of all holidays, the Christmas season. It is so largely because for the moment the world forgets its selfishness and its striving, its sordid ambitions and its everlasting hustle, and returns, to some extent anyway, to the innocence and simplicity of childhood.

The world celebrates that fateful day back in the dimness of old history, when the Saviour of mankind entered this life as a little child. So we have made Christmas primarily a holiday for young life. The best pleasure is not in the gifts the adults make to each other, but in watching the children as they tear down stairs in the darkness of early morning, to see what things Santa Claus stuffed into their stockings. Or in seeing them dance with unrestrained joy, as the Christmas tree is lighted, and its glittering tinsel and flashing colors turn even the humble home into a palace of delight.

In this glorification of child life on Christmas day, the Christian world follows the example of its Master, who said in regard to children, "Of such is the kingdom of heaven."

The children's holiday should not shower them with a surfeit of gifts; they do not appreciate. Too many of them feel that Christmas is a time for them to receive, and not to give. They feel cheated if costly toys and means of enjoyment are not lavished on them, and as a result, become more self-centered.

For those who have no children or whose children have grown up and flown from the home nest, Christmas can still be a day of the true child-like spirit. When early youth is at its best, it feels a spirit of generosity which is apt to disappear when people get out into the cold and selfish struggle of the world. Let us try to recapture some of that better sentiment on this holy day.

SLY ORIENTAL

The Jap is a sly Oriental, not to be trusted by other peoples, his every act subject to suspicious scrutiny because of his past record.

The American people should not be fooled by Japan's present offer of profuse apologies and protestations of friendship for the United States. Little more than a week ago American citizens were being slain by bombs hurled from the air by Japanese murderers. An American naval boat and three other American ships were sunk. These vessels and American citizens had every right to be where they were; the Japs had no right there.

When Japan apologized in China for the slaughter of hundreds of thousands of Chinese and the destruction of hundreds of millions of dollars worth of property and offers to make what amends are possible, its protestations of good intentions will be worth considering, not before.

Japan has been a racketeer Nation for seventy-five years, plundering, killing and stealing whenever she thought she could get away with it. While she is permitted to enjoy immunity for her acts while worshipping at the blood-stained throne of her clownish sun-god, the civilized world will continue to be menaced by her horde.

Americanism: Tightening our belts to fight for a sacred principle; deciding that it doesn't matter much so long as business is good.

MORE HOLIDAY COOKY DELIGHTS

This study of Christmas baking is fascinating, for since last week's column was written, I have rounded up a fresh array of new-old inspirations for holiday cookies.

Actually the subject of Christmas cookies infers German Christmas cookies, for many of our excellent recipes are passed down from that land.

In Germany great cookie bakings are held long before Christmas and everybody joins in baking. Some of the varieties actually require time to ripen. German people look forward to the mixing as a social time, when families and friends gather to shell nuts, chop fruit and beat vigorously.

Often two dozen different kinds of cookies are made, some iced and many sprinkled with nuts. A favorite trick is to brush the top of the cookies with egg white before baking, so that the chopped nuts, or sprinkling of sugar and spices will hold firmly.

Invest in a crescent and a star-shaped cutter for your holiday cookies, and you won't restrict these to Christmas either.

The hospitable habit of the filled cookie jar is being revived and it is a wholesome idea, particularly in the family where there are young children.

Cocktail Sauce

Prepare this sauce in advance for the oyster, shrimp or crabmeat entree of your holiday dinner. Store in covered jar in refrigerator and serve with chilled fish.

Six tablespoons chili sauce; three tablespoons chopped celery; one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce; two tablespoons horseradish; one tablespoon lemon juice.

Behind the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL

Copyright, 1937
King Features Syndicate, Inc.
HOLLYWOOD—With all the spotlight on private lives, half of Hollywood is surprised to find that Nelson Eddy has a living father. The star's parent, William Darius Eddy, is a visitor to filmland and spent a day on the "Girl of the Golden West" set, watching them make movies.

Nelson Eddy

The elder Eddy is a mechanical engineer and an inventor of naval devices. He is divorced from the star's mother, has remarried and lives in Providence, R. I.

John Farrow, the author and director, is writing a "History of the Popes" and, during his recent European trip, saturated himself in ecclesiastical history.

He returned to Hollywood the other day and found out his first assignment will be a picture called "The Singing Cup."

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer was surprised to receive an excited call from Cary Grant, telling them he'd found just the baby to play Myrna Loy's and William Powell's child in the new "Thin Man" picture.

They were surprised because Grant is working at another studio, R-K-O, in the Hepburn film. But they were plenty interested when they heard who Cary's candidate was.

It's the 14-month-old baby of Frank Weatherwax, trainer of the dog, Asta, that appears in the "Thin Man" pictures.

The little boy already is a pal of Asta, which makes him such a natural that a screen test is being hurriedly arranged.

Disney's "Snow White" has been sneak-premiered three times and is cut down to 8,400 feet. In Pomona the audience applauded for 35 minutes, refusing to allow the next picture to come on. . . . Maureen O'Sullivan was kept so busy in England that she never got to Paris at all and had only a week in Ireland. She got back to Hollywood and was put to work immediately in "Madelon". . . . She says Erich von Stroheim is a big success in Paris and that one of his recent pictures has received an award of honor.

How would you like to pay Sonja Henie's stocking bill for "Happy Landings"? They're really tight and she wears out two to three pairs a day. At a cost to the studio of $35 a pair. So far, the item amounts to $1,800.

After all the talk about various stars reading hundreds of volumes in preparation to play historical characters, Norma Shearer's admission seems refreshing and sensible. She has read only one book, she says, about Marie Antoinette—Stefan Zweig's biography of the French queen. It isn't as if she were lazy. But different authors have different conceptions and she decided that too much research would be confusing.

The accidental death of Lige Conley (in an auto accident) drew only a few paragraphs here. Once it would have been a big story. In the old Sennett days, Conley played leads with Marie Prevost and Phyllis Haver. Fame had passed him by of late. He did, however, go out practically with his boots on. For only a few minutes before the accident, he had finished a comedy scene with Fred Allen in "Sally, Irene and Mary".

Conley was 38. And an added note of tragedy. His widow was practically a bride. She and the comedian were married Aug. 7.

La Hepburn will now join the other stars who have gone in for fistcuffs, in recent pictures. In "Bringing Up Baby", she is required to land a left hook on Walter Catlett's jaw. To make it look real, the star took instructions for a day and a half from Nate Slott, one of the assistants on the film, who used to be a fighter.

Maybe this is a snicker. One of the reasons Gene Raymond wanted to leave R-K-O was because he objected to playing an orchestra leader in the Lily Pons picture. So he went to Paramount. And now his first picture there finds him playing a violinist in a group of musicians in a stage act.

Ethel Merman has turned down a $7,000 offer for Gershwin's original manuscript of "Porgy and Bess". Nice gesture by Wayne Morris. He bought 200 tickets to the football game Mickey Rooney's team played at Fielder's field, and turned them over to a group of orphans. . . . Milton Berle was at the Swing club with Marian Sayres and without his mother. . . . And when all this talk about Cantor doing a Broadway play before he returns to Hollywood in the spring to make another Zanuck picture? Don't see how he could do it with his radio program.

Party News

Silver and white is an effective variation of the all-white table. Such a table, viewed recently, was spread with a white cloth, patterned in silver, which had to be touched to convince the closer observer that it was not damask.

In the center of the table was an enormous silver ball, ruled with transparent cellophane, matching cellophane ruffles also forming the base for silver tall candles. For the informal party there were white heavy paper plates, banded with silver, harmonizing with the silver flatware. Even the snappers had elaborate silver and white ruffles like skirts.

New were the silvery nut cups, simulating one-half a nut shell, which might also serve as favors.

Another centerpiece idea is a narrow long glass dish, fairly deep, resembling a crystal trough, in which float white gardenias. White candles in crystal bases guard each end.

Rose bowls, each holding a bud, are another thought for giving each guest an individual bouquet and dodging the conventional centerpiece. No more "poor visibility" from towering bouquets!

Fruit Sauce

This recipe is recommended as a turkey stuffing; or it may be served hot as a sauce for cold sliced fowl:

Three slices bacon; two minced onions; three cups soft bread crumbs; three cups chopped apples; one-half pound cooked, chopped prunes; one and one-half teaspoons salt.

Chop bacon, cook until almost crisp, stir in onions and cook three minutes. Add bread crumbs, mix, blend with apples, prunes, salt. Cook one-half hour in double boiler. Double recipe for stuffing.

FIRST CHRISTMAS GIFTS WERE TREE PRODUCTS: USE OF CHRISTMAS TREES BEGAN 300 YEARS AGO

Dr. Dr. James F. Bogardus
State Secretary of Forests and Waters

HARRISBURG, Dec. 23.—Down through the Christian Era, the forest has played an increasingly important role in Christmas celebrations.

The Christmas tree as we know it is comparatively recent in its development, but its source is dim and remote in the myths of historic time. The first gifts to the Christ Child included Frankincense and Myrrh, both tree products.

An early record of 1605 contains a reference to the custom of bringing fir trees into the home and adorning them with artificial flowers and fruits in certain parts of Germany. At the time the clergy denounced it as being absurd and condemned it on the grounds that it was symbolic of a pagan rite.

Although Christmas has been celebrated in France and England since the Middle Ages, the Christmas Tree was not introduced into these countries until the early part of the eighteenth century. Its use spread rapidly.

This year in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania alone more than two million trees will be used in the Christmas celebration.

The firs, spruces and pines are the most common Christmas trees used today. The fir most commonly used for Christmas, is the balsam fir so called because of the blister-like pockets on the bark which yield a clear resinous liquid known as balsam, the needles and twigs of which are very fragrant.

Douglas fir is popular as a Christmas tree. It obtained the name Douglas from the celebrated Scotch Botanist who discovered it in 1846.

The spruce, it is recorded, received their name many centuries ago from the English in which the word spruce was substituted for "sprossen." The spruces were first called spruce firs and then later on spruces.

The first Christmas gifts were Gold, Frankincense and Myrrh brought by the Wise Men of the East to Bethlehem.

Frankincense and Myrrh were derived from the fragrant resins of the forest trees and in fact were the principal gifts. The Christ Child lay in a rude wooden manger.

The Department is in receipt of numerous requests as to how to keep Christmas trees green and prevent them from losing their needles. The method of keeping cut flowers in fresh condition offers a solution to this problem. When we take cut flowers home, we place them in water as soon as possible and cut the stems from day to day, taking particular care to see that they have fresh water. On the other hand, we take our tree home, let it stand in a corner until ready for use and then wonder why the needles fall off.

Within the needles and wood of each tree are living cells which are still trying to provide the trees with food and moisture. When the moisture and food which is stored up in the trees are gone, the needles will fall off. Experience has proven that if the tree is set in a container which holds water, it will remain fresh for a longer time. The tiny cells in the wood will cause the water to rise in the stem and as a result the trees will be kept green and the needles will be prevented from falling off for a week or longer if the tree is given fresh water. Spruce and fir trees will retain their leaves for a longer period of time than any other Christmas tree and preference is frequently given these varieties by a number of persons.

"NORTH CREEK SANTA CLAUS"

GLENS FALLS, N. Y., Dec. 23.—(INS)—Samuel M. Coplon of Avenue S. Brooklyn, toy salesman, known to hundreds as the "North Creek Santa Claus," has virtually completed plans for his 26th goodwill trip into Northern Warren County.

Mr. Coplon who collects toys from companies he represents in order to have a sufficient supply to bring joy to the hearts of youngsters who would otherwise have anything but a Merry Christmas, plans to return this year to Bakers Mills as a central point of distribution.

Mr. Coplon has been bringing joy to the mountain areas for approximately 26 years. He first came to Northern Warren County in 1909 due to illness and soon after began his widespread distribution of toys to children on down through the quarter century. In that time, he has visited many towns and in late years has been assisted by residents of the various sectors who give the use of their time and motor vehicles in transporting toys to the Bakers Mills point of distribution as well as bringing the individual toys to sections of the county to be given out to children after having been sorted.

Pastors of county parishes aid in collecting names and addresses of those who would otherwise be without Yule cheer.

$1 WAS TOP PRICE

PASADENA, Cal.—(INS)—James R. H. Wagner of Santa Barbara, oldest living former president of the Tournament of Roses Association, recalled at a recent dinner meeting here that "the astounding price" at $1 per seat was charged at the first intersectional football game in Pasadena in 1902.

MANY NEW STARS ON FILM HORIZON

By Milton Harker
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 23—(INS)—Who will be tomorrow's stars?

That question intrigues filmdom as a new year rolls around.

And 1937 has produced a grand galaxy of young hopefuls, striving with every bit of their talent for top-flight billing.

Warner Brothers studio is confident it has real "pay-dirt" in Wayne Morris, 23, California native son who had the critics sitting up in their seats in the title role of "Kid Galahad." Before that he had done only a couple of bit parts.

Florence Rice, born in Cleveland, the daughter of Grantland Rice, famous sports writer, has her future written in large letters at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. In Hollywood less than two years she is winding up 1937 in a blaze of glory with her featured role in "Navy Blue and Gold."

Edith Fellows, 13-year-old comedienne and singer from Boston, recently completed her first starring role in Columbia's "Little Miss Roughneck."

In her next picture she gets top-billing—even above the famous name of Leo Carillo.

Paramount plans big things for Olympe Bradna, 17, from Paris, member of a famous circus family, who scored in "Souls at Sea." So bright is her outlook she next will play opposite handsome Fred MacMurray in "Dream of Love."

Jon Hall, Samuel Goldwyn's sensational discovery, has been placed in the limelight by being starred in his first picture, the spectacular "The Hurricane." With the finest physique to be seen here since the late Wallace Reid, Hall seems destined to go far. He is making a tremendous hit on his personal appearance tour.

Rising swiftly as a dramatic actress is Andrea Leeds, who has won wide acclaim for her performance in RKO's "Stage Door," in support of Katharine Hepburn and Ginger Rogers. Her talent is being compared with such a fine actress as Barbara Stanwyck.

Joan Fontaine, sister of Olivia de Havilland, appears to have the brightest kind of prospects at RKO. While she may not reach the heights as quickly as her better known sister, she is working hard and appears assured of better parts during the coming year.

Petite Mary Maguire, with her beautiful eyes, is another best bet at Warner Brothers. She gave an outstanding performance in "Alcatraz Island."

Rosemary Lane, who can sing and act as well, surpasses the fine work she did in Dick Powell's "Varsity Show" in Warner's new musical extravaganza, "Hollywood Hotel," soon to be released.

A handsome gentleman of whom more will be heard in the future is Kent Taylor, at Universal, who has had several good parts during the past year.

John King, of Cincinnati, practically unknown before, was given starring rating after an outstanding performance in Universal's "The Road Back."

Dennis O'Keefe is being hailed as a new romantic leading man. He walked into M-G-M last summer for a bit part, and landed opposite Virginia Bruce in "Bad Man of Brimstone." He hales from Fort Madison, Iowa.

Born in Rogers Park, a suburb of Chicago, Alan Curtis was equally lucky. Here only six months he won a role in "Maanquin," second only to Spencer Tracy and Joan Crawford. Frank Jenks, from Des Moines, was so good in a role as a taxi driver, Universal put him in his next picture as strong support for Alice Faye and George Murphy.

Marjorie Weaver, and Joan Davis have done so well at Twentieth Century-Fox they have been given two of the leads in "Sally, Irene and Mary," in George Sander's new role at the same studio he will get equal billing with exotic Dolores Del Rio. Marjorie comes from Crossville, Tenn., Joan from St. Paul, Minn., and Sanders was born in Russia of English parents.

Another young lady attracting much attention is Rita Johnson, from Massachusetts, who was considered for the feminine lead in "Saratoga" where M-G-M planned to remake the picture after Jean Harlow's death.

There are many others who need not worry about their prospects.

There's pretty Lynne Carver, singing daughter of a Kentucky mining engineer, June Clayworth, from Wilkes-Barre, Pa., with several important roles after being here only two years; Virginia Gray, the dancer, one of the few in the film colony born in Hollywood; Jean Chatburn, from a Hanover, Mich., farm, who already has played with William Powell; Priscilla Lane, already in featured roles; Ann Sheridan, from Dallas, Texas, who began as a blues singer in her college orchestra; Gloria Dickson, from Pocatello, Idaho, who was given a good start by Mervyn LeRoy; Lana Turner, from Wallace, Idaho, who is concentrating on acting rather than romance; Rita Hayworth, the young Columbia actress, who was once Rita Cansino of the famous dancing Casinos of vaudeville; Virginia Dale, from Charlottesville, S. C., who came here via a featured role in Rudy Vallee's band; Wyn Cahoon, a Jackson, Mich.,

girl, who made good on Broadway as a juvenile comedienne; Vicki Lester, who took her name from the star of a picture, born plain Dorothy Day in New York City; Dorothy McNulty, of Philadelphia, who changed her name to Penny Singleton to keep her husband's name; Ellen Clancy from Omaha, Neb., who is soon to get her first featured role; Jean Benedict, from Hattiesburg, Miss., who is getting better parts; and Eleanor Hansen from Indianapolis.

There are young men from all over the country. Willard Parker, blonde giant from New York; William Hopper, son of famous De Wolf Hopper, who stands six feet three; Scott Colton, of Baltimore; Don Terry, from Natick, Mass.

Robert Wilcox, Rochester, N. Y.; William Lundigan, Syracuse, N. Y.; Gordon Miller, Flint, Mich.; Alexander D'Arcy, from Egypt; Robert Paige, Los Angeles; William Henry, another native son, and Boyd Crawford, from Tarentum, Pa.

Ronald Sinclair, 13, from New Zealand, and Suzanne Larson, 12, are the youngest of the rising new stars, with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer making big plans for both of them.

BRISTOL HOCKEY TEAM TO PLAY POTTSSTOWN

This week-end the local hockey club will cross sticks with the "Sanatoga Sparrows" of Pottstown. In their previous match the "Rees" managed to squeeze out a 3 to 2 victory in the last few minutes of play.

Last week the fans were surprised at the power of the "Rees" in beating a far heavier and more experienced team from Newark. However, it is expected the "Rees" will bow for the third time this season this coming week-end against the Pottstown Club.

Local ice hockey fans, attending the last game, expressed surprise at the speed of roller hockey and showed a keen interest in the sport.

PROPOSE CHANGE IN PA. TROUT FISHING SEASON

By Dick Shaner
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

HARRISBURG, Dec. 23.—(INS)—Short and sweet!

If the present proposition submitted to Pennsylvania anglers receives a fairly strong vote of approval, the opening date for trout season will be delayed until May 1. Two weeks beyond the usual April 15 date. "Feelers" were sent out to various sports associations and clubs in the State by the Fish Commission in an attempt to determine the reaction and opinions of the anglers. So far, there haven't been enough replies received to give any idea which way the poll will go. Proponents of the plan argue that the delayed date will allow more time for stocking of streams. And that freezing weather or also may prevail in some sections on April 15.

When the center-jump was eliminated from basketball, the rules committee stated it was done in the best interests of the players. They took the stand that the center jump worked an unnecessary strain and hardship on participants. And that in the closing stages of the game, the center jump was "killing" to players. Now the question "Will the opening kickoff in football be discarded" has been raised.

True, the very thought of such a drastic change looks far-fetched and silly. But look at it from this angle. When the two teams go into action, the players are cold and high-strung, especially so if it is a championship game. With the opening gun, they go slam-bang into action at a speed of 40 miles an hour, providing a way for possible injuries and at the same time drawing heavily on energy and stamina.

If the basketball rules committee thought the center-jump was hazardous and worked an unnecessary hardship on players, isn't there a possibility that elimination of the colorful kickoff might be given serious consideration by the football rule makers if it were viewed in this light?

Addenda: Connie Mack, veteran pilot of the Philadelphia A's, will celebrate his 75th birthday Thursday. The banquet season is on in full swing, with everybody and anybody being named on all sorts of teams or being voted the standard athlete of the year. The PIAA's proposed amendments concerning Spring football and the age reduction of players received another emphatic vote of disapproval. The WPAL, the far West league, rejected the proposals and by so doing, added its protest to a number of other districts in the State.

SNAKE KILLING CHAMPION

GLENS FALLS, N. Y.—(INS)—With a record of 22 rattlesnakes for the fiscal year which ended December 1, William Clark of Bolton remains the unchallenged rattlesnake killing champion of Warren county. His record is official, shown by the books of Supervisor Edward M. Vandenberg of Bolton which credited Clark with receiving bounties from the county on the 23 reptiles. Formerly fixed at $1.50, the bounty is now $2.50.

YANKS AGAIN HOLD THRONE IN BASEBALL

By Lawton Carver
(I. N. S. Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Dec. 23.—(INS)—Once more stifling all opposition with tremendous power and all-around effectiveness, the New York Yankees set the pace for baseball in 1937. Moreover, they scored their American League and world championship triumphs with such ease that again other clubs were left with only despair for the immediate future.

The Yankees clung to the topmost pinnacle of prestige, retaining ranking with the great clubs of all time, by spread-eagling the field to finish the American league campaign with a 13-game margin over the Detroit Tigers and by knocking off the Giants in four out of five games in the second straight all-New York world series. While batting punch, as typified by Joe DiMaggio, who led in home runs with 46, Lou Gehrig, Bill Dickey, George Selkirk, Tom Henrich and the rest, was their big advantage over other clubs, they also received some of the year's most brilliant pitching.

Lefty Gomez led the entire league in the earned run averages with the lowest figure since 1934 and scored the most victories, 21. Red Ruffing was the only other 20 game winner and Johnny Murphy's relief pitching was still another highlight of the Yankee march, which again was a procession of record-breaking.

One of the most important individual championships in the league, however, fell to a Detroit Tiger—Charlie Gehringer, who won the batting title with a .371 average.

That helped the Tigers to their second place finish behind the Yankees in the league standings and earned for Gehringer the league most valuable player award.

Behind the Tigers in the standings, the other clubs finished in this order: Chicago White Sox, Cleveland Indians, Boston Red Sox, Washington Senators, Philadelphia Athletics and St. Louis Browns.

In a tough National League race, which at one time or another saw the Chicago Cubs, Pittsburgh Pirates and St. Louis Cardinals all threatening, the Giants won their pennant by three games over the Cubs, with the Pirates, Philadelphia Phillies and Cincinnati Reds trailing.

To the Cardinals fell the individual hitting honors, or more specifically to Joe Medwick, who led the National League at bat with an average of .374, tied with Mel Ott of the Giants for home runs with 31, and finished in front in a half dozen other departments to earn the most valuable player award in his circuit.

Paradoxically, Jim Turner and Lou Fette, the 30-year-old rookies of the first place Reds, were among only four pitchers who turned in 20 or more victories. The other two were with the champion Giants—the veteran Carl Hubbell and Freshman Jim Melton.

Yankee dominance in the American League was felt by the National not only in the World Series, but in the All-Star game as well, when a team recruited largely from the World Champions turned back the Nationals by 8 to 3 at Washington, making it four out of five since the inter-league feature was started in 1933.

And it fell to the lot of a Yankee farm, the Newark International league club, to win the Little World Series with the American Association, the Bears nosing out Columbus after winning their pennant by one of the widest margins ever run up in any league.

From the lowliest minors to the majors, almost without exception, the game enjoyed a prosperous season, all barely off below a million dollars, despite the fact that it went to only five games and was confined to Yankee Stadium and the Polo Grounds.

Miss Maria Jarvis, Radcliffe street, will entertain on Christmas, her sisters, Mrs. Wilson Pollard, Montclair, N. J., and Mrs. Anna Harned, Merchantville, N. J. Mrs. Pollard will remain over the week-end with Miss Jarvis.

Turf Topnotchers of 1937

By BURNLEY

It's about time to start reviewing 1937's contributions to sport history, and we couldn't get off to a better start than to begin with the turf wonder of the year, War Admiral.

This extraordinary equine speedster was undefeated in 1937, running away with three-year-old honors in a canter. War Admiral's brilliant victories as a three-year-old have already caused him to be ranked as Man-O-War's greatest son, and some have even compared him with his immortal sire.

Evidence of the high esteem in which War Admiral is held by veteran racing men can be seen in a recent statement by the master of Churchill Downs, Colonel Matt Winn. This famed turf impresario has questioned all the great Kentucky Derby winners and rates War Admiral as unquestionably the best of that shining band of turf lights.

Due to an injury, Samuel Riddle's great colt was on the shelf for part of the 1937 campaign, and this lay-off cost him the title of money-winning champion for the year. Sea Biscuit, another 1937 standout, managed to nose out the Admiral in total winnings.

These two leading colts are both scheduled to race in outstanding events this winter and may meet next March in the $100,000 Santa Anita Handicap.

CLIFF OLSON PINNED TO MAT BY CAMPOFREDA

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 23.—Employing the same hold he used last week in bringing about the downfall of Nick Campofreda, Cliff Olson, Madcap Swede from Minnesota, won the feature wrestling bout from the Baltimorean at the Arena last night in 20 minutes.

Cliff had intended last night's encounter to be a replica of the rousing setto the boys engaged in last week, but his plans went awry when his trusty weapon—a piece of adhesive tape—dropped from his hand as the referee tried to take it. Olson had but one opportunity to employ this means of torture on the luckless Campofreda before the referee became aware of the play. Outfoxed in this means of attack, Olson resorted to his forearm—a potent weapon as dealt by the Swede. Scoring frequently with a stinging barrage Olson had Nick reeling about the ring with his savage attack. The bout was brought to a sudden climax when the Swede thought pinned on the ropes, let fly his right forearm and caught Nick on the chin. The latter dropped to the canvas.

where Cliff pounced on him to gain the fall.

Carol (Frenchy) LaRue, of Roebling, copped the semi-windup in 15 minutes when he threw George Kondylas, Greece, with a body press. LaRue, recently turned badman, tugged as Kondylas' mustache throughout the bout. Bert Varga, local matman, made his debut before local fans a successful one by pinning Abe Stein, New York, in 10 minutes. Varga appears to have the makings of a good wrestler and, though he lacks experience, he proved a capable opponent for the New Yorker.

Mayes McLain, popular Iowan, won the second bout on the card by pinning Bronco Valdez, stocky Mexican, in 11 minutes.

SECOND WARD BOYS WIN

By Louis Tomlinson

The Second Ward Boys' Club won a pair of basketball games from Boys' Club last night by downing St. Ann's and Grundy's quintets in a thrilling double header. The Second Warders topped St. Ann's in the opener, 23-20; then came back to hand the Mill team a setback by the count of 23-17 in the finale.

CHILDREN FOR RENT

VIENNA.—(INS)—A "child market," where beggars were supplied with children hired by the day, was recently raided by the Vienna police. Begging, it was discovered, proved far more profitable when "parents" could exhibit a starving child to passers-by. The hiring fee ranged from 50 cents to one dollar per day, according to the "pulling power" of the child in extracting alms.
